Dual Career Partners

The decision to accept a new position and relocate to another city is a personal one. Washington and Lee University understands that your decision to relocate here, as well as your happiness here is greatly influenced by opportunities for your spouse or partner.

Washington and Lee University has responded to the emergence of dual career partners by providing job search information to the partners of new employees who also seek faculty or professional positions in the area. While we cannot guarantee placement, we will work with you to explore local options.

UNIVERSITY RESOURCES

Applicants with concerns are encouraged to initiate conversations with department chairs or supervisors during the interview process or shortly after an offer is extended. Applicants may also contact Mary Katherine Snead, assistant director of work/life initiatives for dual career assistance (mksnead@wlu.edu or 540.458.8355). Mary Katherine can work with various departments, the offices of the provost and deans internally, as well as provide assistance with local resources.

➤ Office of the Provost

The Office of the Provost maintains a list of academic personnel contacts at other colleges and universities in the region. Departments that become aware of a candidate whose partner seeks academic employment may initiate conversations with the Provost's Office.

➤ Human Resources

The Office of Human Resources coordinates the hiring process for administrative and staff positions. A listing of vacancies is displayed on the Office of Human Resources web site:
<http://humanresources.wlu.edu>.

➤ Home ownership

To facilitate home ownership, the university has established its own loan program. The program offers reduced interest rates on mortgages for exempt employees.
